

4 Opportunities for SMEs in the fashion industry - interviews with experts. n fashion enterprises and recognized as key players in the first part of the study In the context of an acute shortage of supply in the SME sector at the global and regional levels, the chances of those who are ready to develop their business in Russia are the highest, according to analysts from the Insead Business School and the Russian University of Economics. Gaidar. This conclusion was made based on an analysis of data from reports of 1800 enterprises in 6 countries with strong and weak institutions of law from February - 2017, published by Credit Suisse. In total, 2322 residents of the SME industry and 757 directors were interviewed. To give the most correct data, interviewers asked only about three things: satisfaction with the business environment (CRE) and openness to new ideas (ANC), as well as the possibility of forming a team, which is already the first element in the list of MBFD values. And of course, about the possibilities and goals of entering foreign markets. After general questions regarding CRE, recommendations for creators and leaders began. It was taken into account how innovative and ready for the fact that new ideas would not be popular, whether the company had plans to enter new foreign markets and how much time passed between the launch and the first export experience, what was important for the company to become an export center and how strong it is focused on serving business customers. According to CNBC Business Insider, companies that excel in answering six questions were told, "If you contact foreign organizations or local politicians, you will get the same answers." This is in line with expectations: the number of companies that said "eyes", which should be reflected in the assessment of their exports for 2017. Representatives of Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Turkey, India are leading in this list. Success in fashion depends on the quality of the MBF team and innovation. Credit Suisse observers refer to M.Video as an example of success, which in 2016 ranked first in IDEO's Global Entrepreneurship Index BAT200
