What's New In?

It will show a list of all files matching your extension(s) and let you choose whether to extract them all or add only a few. If you find that the list of selected files is longer than the list you want to add, you can sort by file size in the choices by using the "Sort by" on the top left. The size will be shown in bytes. You can select only certain file types to add to the list. You can choose to recurse the directory tree when adding files or not. This will make the list of files you want to add a bit longer (but not much). You can change the icon style to automatically calculate the size of the extracted icon. Possible problems: If you extract files with a name including a space, this will cause an error and some of the extracted files will not be saved. To be added to the list, files must have a visible size. If you put a zero size file into the list, the selected icon will have a zero size. package org.springframework.roo.related.readonly.domain; import org.springframework.roo.addon.dto.annotations.RooDatatype; import org.springframework.roo.addon.jpa.annotations.javax.persistence.Entity; import org.springframework.roo.addon.jpa.annotations.javax.persistence.Id; import org.springframework.roo.addon.jpa.annotations.javax.persistence.SequenceGenerator; import org.springframework.roo.addon.jpa.annotations.javax.persistence.SequenceGenerator; import org.springframework.roo.related.readonly.domain.Visit; /** * = Visit * * @author Sergio Clares * @since 2.0 */ @SuppressWarnings("javadoc") @RooDatatype(javax.persistence.Entity) @RooJavaBean(entity = Visit.class, name = "Visit") @RooToString public class Visit { @Id @SequenceGenerator(name = "visit_id_seq", sequenceName = "visit_id_seq") @RooLong(entity = Visit.class
