1. Field of the Invention This invention relates to a magneto-optical disk recording and reproducing apparatus and, more particularly, to a magneto-optical disk recording and reproducing apparatus which includes a rotary platter on which recording and reproducing is performed with a magneto-optical disk mounted on the platter.

2. Description of the Prior Art The magneto-optical disk recording and reproducing apparatus of the type described includes a magneto-optical disk mounted on a rotary platter which is rotated by a motor. The portion of the magneto-optical disk which is in contact with the rotary platter is positioned in a light exposure position. The disk is driven while being rotated and the light is applied to the medium by a light emitting element, and the polarization state of the light which is reflected by the disk is detected to detect the recorded information. The light which is emitted from the light emitting element is reflected by the disk and reaches the photodetector through an objective lens, which is provided on a light projecting optical unit. A structure has been proposed which is provided with two light projecting optical units. In this structure, the light projecting optical units are placed such that the light emitting elements of the units are opposed to each other with a distance therebetween which corresponds to the diameter of the objective lens of the light projecting optical unit. In recent years, the fine technology has been carried out in the field of magneto-optical disk recording and reproducing apparatus in order to increase the recording density and the recording
